Wild Learning – a unique experience

Wild Learning is a different kind of holiday club, one that encourages children to explore themselves and their environment while learning and having fun.

“Dirtiest faces, biggest smiles...”

“I collected a little girl bursting with excitement to tell me all about her day and asking when she could go again. Her day was ‘beyond epic’!! “

“Wow - did I get back happy and tired out boys! In dire need of a bath with ‘awesome’ stories about den building, tree houses, animals they spotted on the Common, and games they played.”

Outdoor learning for your school

Wild Learning activity days link in with your classroom projects to create a new dimension for your pupils' experience.

Whether you want to complement a learning theme, culminate a project with a memorable event, or simply use our outdoor learning expertise, Wild Learning activity days can be tailored precisely to your needs. Learn about ecosystems, understand how the landscape evolves or try out the skills our ancestors would have had to have. Explore boundaries, learn about risk and responsibility, and develop team skills. Our natural spaces are perfect to launch, complement or culminate classroom projects.

“We just wanted to say a HUGE thank you to you and your lovely leaders for a WONDERFUL four weeks of forest school at the common. It has been such a valuable experience for our boys who don't get an opportunity to interact much with nature at school. All your staff were brilliant and made our mornings fun and exciting. I can't express what a brilliant experience it was! We all learnt so much!”
